TO step off the Canadian National train on a summer morning in Jasper is to walk into a morning that is as new as the first morning of creation. The mountains are submerged in centuries; compared with them the most hoary cities—even that city of great romance, the “rose-red city half as old as Time,” wherever it stands—are growths of a night; but by enchantment the mountains are new eternally; each morning, as the filmy white mists loosen from the pines and float free to vanish into the clear sky, they stand forth afresh. With every rising sun the mountains are born again.

Into the fair new morning glides the train and the traveller enters the mountains almost like a swimmer diving into a clear cold pool. He is refreshed in an instant, he is excited, he is astounded.

The bus circles the tall totem pole by the station and passes through the charming town of logs and stone; it flies almost too quickly over the winding three miles to the Lodge. The rolling Whistlers, green almost to the top, fall behind; fall back but, like the glistening bulk of Pyramid, keep their true place in the scheme of things and are not lost; and as the bus runs on, new mountain peaks appear. Under the bridge, the Athabaska drives furiously to the Arctic. The highway plunges into the woods; pines aromatic, and aspens twinkling in the sun, thrust up from both sides. Perhaps a deer bounds out and crosses the road with an incredible spring; perhaps a bear ambles along and stares curiously over his shaggy shoulder. A turn in the road, a glimpse of green grass and a red flag waving, a glimpse of shining water, and there, sudden to sight, stands the Lodge.

The day when the Canadian Rockies need be compared with Switzerland is gone. They stand on their own merits, they have a character of their own. Nevertheless, many travellers still think of mountains in terms of the Alps, and one of the best compliments that ever came the way of Jasper Park Lodge was that paid it by an eminent Swiss mountain climber: "We have nothing like this in Switzerland!"

He was standing on the sloping lawn in front of the Lodge, on a glowing August afternoon. Before him, broken by the rock garden that threw summer back to the sun in a glorious outburst of poppies, marigolds, snapdragons, nemesia, bluebells and a thousand and one other flowers, the sward ran green to the water's edge; the swimming tank on the verge of the lake was lively with shouts and splashes and running figures, a diver soared into the air; the lake, disturbed only by the silver streak of a gliding canoe, lay in lucent color; at one end of the lake he could see a stretch of grass and a little red flag on Jasper's famous golf course; on the far side of the still sheet of water and reflected in it, the stout curves of the Whistlers; to his left, eighteen miles away but dominating the whole valley, the shapely peak of Mount Edith Cavell, radiant in snow and ice; to his right, the upthrusting angle of Pyramid, hard, colored, polished mineral. Behind him stretched the Lodge, a little summer village of cabins ranged along the lake and planted among the trees.

Mounts Hardisty and Kerkeslin and the winding Athabasca River form this impressive panoramic view from the Cavell Drive

JASPER PARK Lodge

The Cavell Drive is climaxed by an unforgettable view of Mount Edith Cavell and Angel Glacier. Mount Sorrow, rust-red and drab, obtrudes to throw into sharp relief the glistening white of the massive, ice-draped form beyond

JASPER Park Lodge

As an angel with outspread wings the glacier appears to visitors, who are carried to its very edge by motor car and so enabled to traverse its lower slopes and peer into its yawning crevasses

"How wise the builders were!" he exclaimed. "In Switzerland our hotels are pretentious, big buildings much more in keeping with a city atmosphere than with the mountains. Here, the Lodge does not intrude; with its logs and its shingled roofs it blends with the trees; it rises naturally from the lake; it does not clash with the hills."

The builders were wise. Jasper Park Lodge is large—it has rooms enough for more than six hundred guests; in the main building is a dining-room where four hundred may dine at once; it is a self-supporting institution with a staff of several hundreds; it gives its guests electric lights and telephones and hot water and laundry service and the fruits of a bountiful and well-run kitchen; it maintains an orchestra for dancing every night, as well as for concerts; it operates a fleet of automobiles, busses and trucks; in every respect it is a luxurious and modern hotel. And yet it is vastly different. It is in the mountains, and the builders were wise because it is of the mountains as well. It is comfortable, but it is also beautiful. Its foundations are stones dug out of the mountainsides; its walls are the trees of the mountains, cut, peeled and carefully fitted.

JASPER PARK Lodge

The golf club house

In two of the wings of the main building bed rooms may be had, but most of the travellers who go to Jasper prefer to live in the cabins. They are of all sizes, some ten bed rooms, some sixteen, some only large enough for a family. It is a favorite custom for a family or a group of friends to rent a cabin for two weeks, a month, or even the whole season. Two of the cabins are entirely self-contained, including dining room and servants' quarters. The other cabins have sitting rooms, verandahs, and are steam-heated. All bedrooms have hot and cold running water, and the majority have private bath.

Summer in Jasper means beauty to be enjoyed and air to be drunk in like wine. The beauty and exhilaration of Jasper may be approached in many ways. It might well be enough to reach them by idling, by sauntering around the lake or strolling in the woods, by sun-bathing at the open swimming pool, by drifting over the lake in a canoe that floats like a leaf on the emerald water.

JASPER PARK Lodge

This bird's-eye view of a portion of the Jasper Park Lodge golf course was obtained from a shoulder of Mount Tekarra

But it would be a shame not to motor up the zig-zagging road that climbs two thousand feet to the very brink of the ice that clings to the side of Mount Edith Cavell, the glacier that looks so much like an angel with wings outspread, a drive that reveals the Athabaska Valley in stretch after stretch of shifting beauty.

It would be a mistake not to see the majesty of Mount Edith Cavell close at hand, and it would be a mistake not to drive the six miles toward the Old Man, that most familiar figure in the range behind the Lodge, to see the Maligne River rive the rocks apart and cleave the amazing gorge. "Any other canyon is like a crack in a teacup," said a traveller once as he leaned over and peered into the perilous depths.

The drive to Pocahontas is another revelation of Jasper National Park. Hunters with the camera—no others are allowed, for the park is a game preserve—are particularly fond of it, for, while a guest might come out any morning to find a deer at his front door or might see a family of bears crossing a fairway of the golf course as he tees up, the best place to see game is along the Pocahontas highway. Cinnamon bears, black bears, beaver, deer, moose, mountain sheep and many other animals, wild and yet unafraid, may be seen almost any day, especially early in the season. To the Swiss climber who was mentioned a few pages back, the animals were a continual delight. "We have none in Switzerland at all, you know," he said.

Idling and motoring are two ways of knowing Jasper. They have their rewards, but to appreciate the mountains to the full, the better way is to get astride a pony or go a-hiking. There are hundreds of miles of trails, short ones and long ones.

Soon the motors will be able to reach the chalet at Maligne Lake, but at present, part of the journey must be done on foot or on horseback, and Maligne Lake is the crowning glory of Jasper Park. It is seventeen miles long and from the very water the mountains rise, magnificent, colossal, snowbound and icebound throughout the summer as in winter. To ride or hike around the Circle, from the Lodge to Maligne and back through the awesome Shovel Pass, camping out for three nights, each at a different but equally comfortable chalet, is to get the true thrill of the Rockies.

Then there is golf! If it is not enough to say that the Canadian and the Western Canada Amateur Championship tournaments were played at Jasper during 1929, the praises of golfers from all parts of the world may be heaped up. The Jasper Park Lodge links not only give new aspects of mountain beauty at every turn but they stand by their reputation as the finest on the continent and among the finest in the world. Trickily laid out, sporty, they yet make provision for players of less than championship calibre. After playing at Jasper, where par is so hard to beat, where the air urges the player to at least 36 holes a day, where sunlight and shadow, clouds and rainbows change the landscape every hour, and a bear might chase the ball, one is more critical of ordinary courses.

Jasper lives up to the joy of the first glimpse, whether the traveller spends all his time at golf, whether he rests and muses, whether he fares into the Tonquin Valley to climb the frowning Ramparts, whether he mounts a canny-footed pony or strides over the trails on his own legs. He may go to Jasper in spring, when the woods are sprinkled and perfumed with wild flowers and the birds are hosting about the gleaming lakes, when even on Signal Mountain and the Whistlers the snow lies low; he may go in the flare and luxury of summer; or he may wait until fall, when the valleys are brimming with yellow and maroon and the mountain

JASPER Park Lodge

SADDLE TRIP NO. 15: Maligne Chalet, commanding a full view of Maligne Lake, is situated on a low plateau at the outlet. Before the Chalet and extending in a south-easterly direction for seventeen miles, with a breadth varying from two hundred yards to two miles and possessing some fifty miles of shore line, lies the largest glacial fed lake in the Canadian Rockies.

Beginning with Mount Samson, the jagged peak ten thousand feet high facing the Chalet on the left, the altitude of the peaks forming the Maligne group, which includes Mounts Charlton, Unwin, Warren, Mary Vaux and Maligne, increases until, in Mount Brazeau, a height of twelve thousand two hundred and fifty feet is reached—one thousand feet higher than Mount Edith Cavell and approaching the height of Mount Robson itself.

The mountains rise precipitously from the lake and are heavily laden with snow and ice. At the south-west end of the lake, farthest from the Chalet, lies a considerable snowfield and leading in a southerly direction towards the Brazeau River district is a high, though broad snow-pass, along the western base of Mount Brazeau and affording an easy way of access to this very interesting neighborhood. The nature of mountains in the Maligne Lake district affords abundant opportunity for both ice and rock climbing and is within easy reach of the Chalet by motorboat, horseback or on foot, and many comparatively easy climbs may be carried out by the amateur.

The mountains, and flowered alplands, within easy reach from the Chalet, will prove of interest to botanist and naturalist alike. Sheep, goat, cariboo, moose and deer frequent these pastures. The Opal Hills facing the Chalet on the east, provide sheep and goat for the observation of the visitor, while the mountain sides overlooking the lake and particularly those about the south-east are used extensively by the mountain goat as a summer pasture.

Route

The first five miles of the trail lie eastward from Jasper Park Lodge down the Athabaska Valley to the Maligne River, then turning up the Maligne River, along the base of the Colin Range nine miles to Medicine Lake and three and one-half miles along the shore of Medicine Lake to Medicine Lake Chalet. From Medicine Lake Chalet stretches ten miles of good trail and easy grades along the east bank of the Maligne River to Maligne Chalet.

Visitors returning by the Shovel Pass route over the Maligne Range, on leaving the Maligne Chalet, proceed up the slope of the mountains to the west of the Chalet and, crossing the Alpine meadows, go through Little Shovel Pass and Big Shovel Pass to spend the night at Shovel Pass Camp, completing the trip the succeeding day by following the trail down from the Maligne Range, by Signal Mountain, into the Athabaska Valley and return to the Lodge.

Camps

MEDICINE LAKE CHALET, elevation 4,500 feet, situated at the upper (south) end of Medicine Lake at the point where the river enters the lake, is a peeled log building containing dining-room, sitting-room and limited sleeping accommodation, supplemented by floored and walled tents containing heaters. Accommodation—fifteen.

Side trips to Jacques Lake, good fishing.

MALIGNE CHALET, elevation 5,500 feet, situated on Maligne Lake at the outlet of the lake, comprises a main building or Chalet with a dining-room and sitting-room and a limited number of bedrooms. This building is supplemented by heated tents similar to those at Medicine Lake. Accommodation—twenty-five.

American Plan

Altitudes

The Across Canada route of the Canadian National Railways, though flanked by the highest peaks in the Canadian Rockies including Mount Robson (12,972 feet), crosses the mountains at the lowest altitude and easiest gradient of all trans-continental lines. This is a factor of particular interest and importance to travellers unaccustomed to, or unable to stand high altitudes.

Similarly, the altitude of Jasper in the wide sweeping valley of the Athabaska is but 3,470 feet above sea level, and visitors need rise but little above this altitude to enjoy many of the attractions of this mountain playground.
